

January 2010

Artlab Member Success

Martha Oatway

Congratulations to Artlab member Martha Oatway who has this week been contacted by Project Manager of the Medical Arts section of NIH (National Institute Human Genome Research Institute) to purchase four of her prints.

Martha previously exhibited work at the University campus of the National Institutes of Health in Washington, DC two years ago after the curator had visited her website and wanted large prints relating to DNA and maths. The prints were selected to hang outside the office of the new director of the NIH, Dr. Francis Collins. Dr. Collins served as the first director of the National Human Genome Research Institute (NHGRI) at the NIH from 1993-2008.

NIH subsequently purchased three prints, one of which is an illustration of her daughter's PhD thesis. The mother and daughter collaboration is hanging in a research library on the campus.

